This engagement also shows that the Boers have not lost their spirit, and that they will fight when conditions favor them, as vigorously as they did earlier in the war.

The Boers believe there is a British force at Senekal. This may well be so, for Lord Roberts did not ride over to Winburg merely for air. If this link in the chain across the east of the Free State was occupied on Tuesday, the British force, probably mounted men, will be in Bethlehem to-

About 8,000 horsemen were probably engaged in this advance. General Hutton, before he was joined by a part of General French's force, had a sharp fight. This was on Monday. When he reached the river he eaw the Boer convoys on the other aide and pressed forward, intending to cross and fire with from eight to ten guns, forded the river above and below, seemingly in thousands, and sought to envelop the British General Hutton fell back several miles, the Boers following until other British cavairy re-enforced Hutton, During the night the Boers retreated, not further contasting

General Roberts, according to one correspondent, left Smaldell Tuesday to consult one of the Hamiltons, fifteen miles distant. The Boer attack on General Hutton does not indicate any such panicky conditions as have been alleged to exist among them. Nevertheless, the British advance rolls on steadily. General Broadwood and General Bruce Hamilton have penetrated fifteen Infles beyond Winburg.

According to Boer advices, sharp skirmishes are of daily occurrence, and there was a brisk rifle engagement outside Win-
